Working with Due West is...

A valuable professional experience where you will...

“I have seen Due West develop from a scrappy start-up to a staff of 50+, and along the way I have been able to contribute ideas that drive this sort of growth. Working for this expanding company has given me the most valuable professional development of my career so far.”

- Rosalyn Shih

Contribute in meaningful ways...

“I really enjoyed turning my first year experience as a new counselor into what eventually became the Student Orientation book, as well as leading cross-team efforts to create our in-house presentation series. Even as Due West continues to grow and expand, new members with varying interests and backgrounds are able to make an impact in similar ways, be it creating college-readiness reading seminars for our students or installing new online work platforms. I am excited for the future because I’m sure there is more to come!”

- Wenjing Zhou

Face challenges and opportunities for growth...

“The challenges of our fast-paced work environment may seem intimidating at first glance, but if you’re like me, challenges can become opportunities for growth. Personally, I find the pressures of meeting expectations to also be intensely rewarding when seeing a project through to completion. This type of atmosphere isn’t for everyone, but if you enjoy being pushed to excel, you’d really enjoy working here. What’s more, our team is comprised of some of the brightest, most creative people around who are more than willing to lend support when needed. You’d be surprised to find out the varied interests of your colleagues once you get to know them!”

- Rhianna Aaron

Make a positive impact...

“It was extremely important that I worked for a company with a mission that I not only believed in, but also saw making a positive impact as a priority.”

- Jeffrey Harmon

Be involved in the evolving international education landscape...

“Due West is a company that is involved in every aspect of education. We’re not just thinking about how to educate individual students, but we are simultaneously thinking about how to fundamentally fix the way this process is done. We are out here changing the way education is done in China. That is a pretty incredible thing to be a part of.”

- Tim Calder

Provide ethical service to students...

“As a career educator with 15 years of experience, what attracted me to Due West is the commitment to education and providing high-quality, ethical service to its students. I’ve encountered several consultants and agents while working for various private schools in the US. Due West is among the few companies that does things the right way.”

- Justin Anderson

Be a part of a dynamic multicultural environment...

“For me personally, it’s a great intellectual pleasure to work in a multicultural environment. It gives me the opportunity to learn about the condition of a foreign company in China and the inter-company relationships between Chinese locals and foreigners. It teaches me the challenges that a foreign company targeting the Chinese market faces. Seeing the efforts Due West has put in to make sure it’s a fair and fun environment for all staff, Chinese and non-Chinese alike, also encourages me to think about diverse perspectives.”

- Velma Cao

And have fun with a diverse staff!

“At Due West, you’ll have coworkers who can teach you how to say “lunch” in Mandarin, Kazakh, Wenzhouhua, Japanese, Spanish, and so on. You’ll have coworkers that listen to Bay Area hyphy, Icelandic indie-pop, and Cantonese dad-rock. If none of that means anything to you, don’t worry. There are lots of different personalities and lots of different outlooks on life, but the hiring process at Due West makes sure that everyone is fun and everyone is friendly. China is not the monoculture it may appear from the outside, and Due West has done an admirable job of creating racial, religious, ethnic, sexual, gender, and age diversity in the workplace.”

- Joe Maher

About Due West Education

Founded in 2009 and based in Beijing, China, Due West Education is a growing and innovative education company passionate about helping students get the information and resources they need to succeed in an increasingly global society. This means providing transparent and comprehensive information for students about educational opportunities around the world, and also preparing these students to succeed once they have selected a program.

Due West is particularly driven to combat the rise of predatory “admissions agents,” by constantly striving to provide high-quality, ethical consulting without fail to each and every one of our clients. Our range of services include helping students identify the best “fit” educational programs, helping guide them through the admissions process, and providing in-depth classes about succeeding in a competitive Western academic environment.
